

Welcome!

The Skagit Eagle Festival is a month-long celebration during the peak of eagle-watching season in eastern Skagit County. Activities take place in Concrete, Rockport and Marblemount (and beyond!) every weekend in January.

The Festival features a variety of free tours, walks, and educational programs where you'll learn not only about these majestic birds, but also about the beautiful areas along the Skagit River where they return each year.

Presentations will teach you about wolves, how to photograph wildlife and scenery, and much more. You also have the opportunity to enjoy arts & crafts, wine tasting, river rafting, music, dance and a wide variety of other outdoor and indoor activities.

Bring your camera, dress for winter weather, and join us for one of the most uplifting and entertaining events of the year!

How to Get Here

From I-5, take Exit 232 (Cook Rd.), and drive east to the light at State Route 20 in Sedro-Woolley. Turn left and travel approximately 25 miles to Concrete (milepost 88), or continue to Rockport (milepost 98) and Marblemount (milepost 106).

Eagle Viewing

and Driving Tips

Eagle Viewing

- To see eagles up close, use a telescope, binoculars or a telephoto lens. Keep noise low and your movements slow.
- Whenever possible, stay in your car and use it as a blind from which to photograph the eagles.
- Stay away from the river's edge and gravel bars where eagles are feeding, especially between 7 and 11 a.m.
- Most of the river frontage is privately owned. Use public areas along the river and be courteous to local land owners. Do not walk across private property.

Driving Tips

- Adjust speed according to traffic and weather.
- Watch for pedestrians: people often cross the roadways during eagle watching season.
- Carry winter emergency equipment: blanket, flashlight, jumper cables, snow shovel, additional winter clothing, and abrasive material (e.g. cat litter, sand).
- Be aware that cell phone reception can be unreliable in eastern Skagit County.
